

Disclaimer and Terms of Use

(as required by the various bars of which our attorneys are members)

The materials on this World Wide Web site are provided for informational purposes only. These materials do not constitute legal advice, and are not guaranteed to be correct, complete, comprehensive or current. You should not act or rely on any information contained on this site without first seeking the advice of an attorney. The materials contained on this site do not necessarily reflect the opinions of Balch & Bingham LLP or any of its attorneys or clients, or other entities referenced within the site. This World Wide Web site does not, nor is it intended to, create an attorney-client relationship between you and Balch & Bingham LLP or any of the firm's attorneys.

Please feel free to contact the firm by e-mail. Be aware, however, that communications through this Web site or in any other manner regarding a matter for which we do not already represent you may not be privileged or confidential. Communications regarding matters for which we do represent you should be made with caution, as Internet e-mail is not secure. You should avoid sending sensitive or confidential Internet e-mail messages unless they are sufficiently encrypted.

In some jurisdictions, this World Wide Web site may be considered to be advertising. The hiring of a lawyer is an important decision that should not be based solely upon written information contained on this site or other written information about the qualifications and experience of the firm and its attorneys.

Balch & Bingham LLP has at least one attorney licensed to practice in each of the following states: Alabama, Arizona, California, the District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Louisiana, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. While legal and ethical compliance requirements vary from state to state, Balch & Bingham LLP has attempted to comply with all known regulations regarding law firm Web sites. We do not intend to represent clients based upon their review of any portion(s) of this site that does not comply with legal or ethical requirements of any jurisdiction to which the site is subject.

Links contained on this World Wide Web site are provided as citations and supplemental materials to guide you to other Internet sites of interest. Balch & Bingham LLP does not sponsor nor endorse any site linked to this site, nor is the firm affiliated or associated with any organization associated with such links. Balch & Bingham LLP is not legally authorized to use any trade name, registered trademark, logo, seal or copyright contained in the links.

If your state bar requires the designation of a principal office and/or contact to whom comments regarding this World Wide Web site may be directed, Balch & Bingham LLP designates its office at 1710 Sixth Avenue North in Birmingham, Alabama, USA, as its principal office.

If you believe that this site contains material which infringes upon your copyrighted work, please submit the following information to our designated copyright agent:

- A physical or electronic signature of the person authorized to act on behalf of the copyright owner;
- A description of the copyrighted work that you claim has been infringed upon;
- A description of the location on this site of the work that you claim infringes the copyrighted work;
- Your contact information, including address, telephone number and e-mail address;
- A statement that you have a good faith belief that the use of the alleged infringing material is not authorized by the copyright owner, its agent or the law; and
- A statement by you, made under penalty of perjury, that the information submitted above is accurate and that you are either the copyright owner or authorized to act on the copyright owner's behalf.

Submit the information above to the following designated copyright agent:

Pam Payne Smith
Balch & Bingham LLP
ppsmith@balch.com